NAACL Spending (2017-2024)

Bank Account Balance Update

- Current bank account balance: $42,318.27
- No transfers from ACL since the ACL 2020 transfer in May 2022
- Expecting $$191,236 - $21,019 + $87,951 - $37,376$ from conferences
- Not expecting additional 2024 charges from CLO, JSALT, Khipu, RAF, etc.
- No 2025 charges yet
- Recommended minimum balance to offset unexpected loss: $100,000
- Recommendation: maintain current levels of spending

NAAACL 2025 PC Report

Review Statistics for NAACL

ARR 2024/10

3185 submissions

~3000 reviewers, ~550 area chairs assigned

82 submissions: additional ethics review

Big thanks to ARR team, esp. Viviane Moreira, Anna Rogers, Michael White

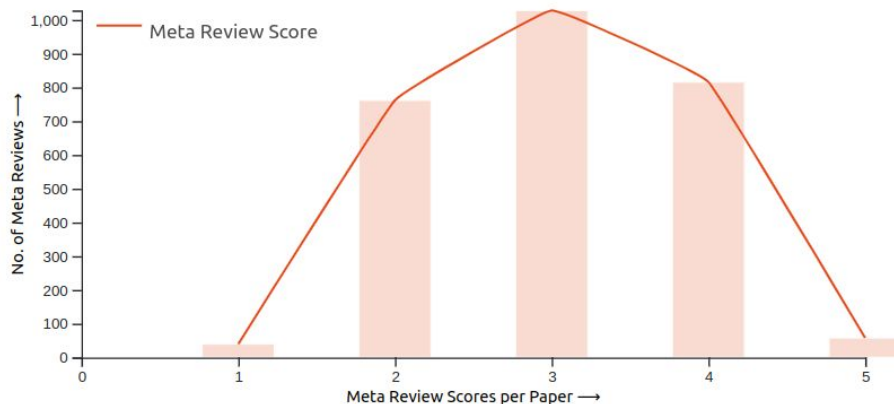

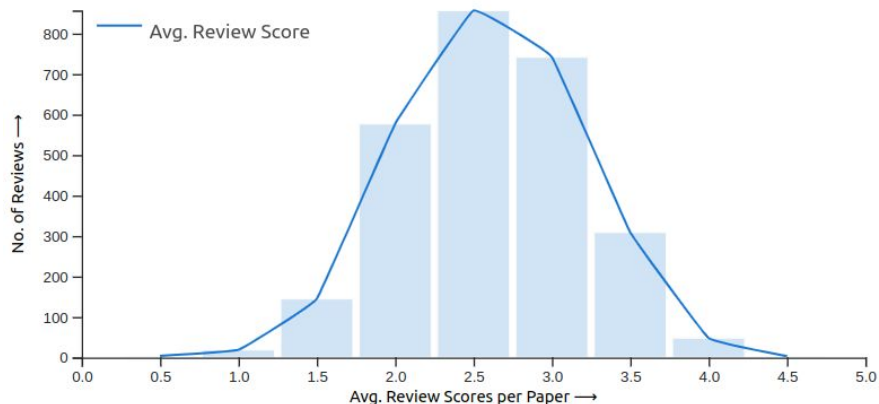

NAACL Commitment

1647 submissions

91% from ARR 2024/10

Ranked by 98 senior area chairs

Accepted: 719 Main Conference & 477 Findings

ARR-only submissions

Keep working on:

- Building a stable reviewer/meta-reviewer pool
- Maintaining a reliable emergency reviewer pool
- Clear standard on what papers are within scope of *ACL conferences
- Easier retrieval of previous submissions and reviews
- Standardizing ARR processes for future PCs/EiCs

Hybrid Conference: separate days for virtual & in-person

Our goal is to have good engagement for both virtual and in-person participants

- Virtual conference might be an important component in the recent future

Details to consider:

- This time: virtual posters + orals for award winning papers
- Chat & QA tools during orals?
- Panels?
- Surveys to the ACL community and participants

Additional topics of discussion

Posters vs orals: should we allow some papers to present as both orals and posters to make orals more attractive?

Findings presentation at main conference: optional, but can choose to present as posters

Conference scheduling, programming planning, change of presentation modes, etc

ARR — Challenge:

Provide a very large number of good-quality reviews in a short time

ARR — On having enough reviewing capacity

- Recent cycles: regular reviewer pool woefully insufficient
- How can we have a sustainable system?
 - Since April 2024, ARR has had mandatory reviewing requirements — each paper needs to nominate an author who will complete 4 reviews
 - February 2025 (ACL): more reviews required when submitting multiple papers
 - From May 2025 (EMNLP): following ACL Exec suggestion, all qualified authors must review
 - CVPR introduced a similar change
 - Also new reviewer carrots and sticks — see blog post for details

ARR — On having better reviews

- Guidelines thoroughly revised for reviewers and ACs
 - To streamline resubmissions: reviewers discouraged from raising new issues unrelated to changes (unless new reviewers requested)
- Starting in the October cycle — review feedback form
 - Authors can flag problematic reviews (not specific enough, unprofessional tone, unreasonable requests, etc.; see <https://aclrollingreview.org/authors#step2.2>)
 - Issue reports submitted for 10% of reviews
 - Affected AC verdict for 80% of papers with reports
- Stats on reviewers who provide great reviews
<https://stats.aclrollingreview.org/iterations/2024/october/>

ARR — Updated CFP

- Moved to 10-week review cycle (with ACL Peer Review Committee)
- From October: more detailed instructions to authors
 - Explanation of revisions required for resubmissions
- Tips on how to avoid common problems
- Please read carefully!

Open Issues

- AI-generated reviews
- AI-generated papers
- Authors with an extremely high number of submissions
- Authors spamming us with papers
- Reviewers plagiarizing reviews

Now handled together with ACL Publication Ethics Committee
